SUPER-HUMAN ENDURANCE

As we hear the returning soldiers tell of their super-human experiences during their stay in the U.S. Army, we stand in wonderment, we marvel at their patience; we wonder what manner of men they be.

Go to us, if you please to the bloody fields of France, where the black toes went into the battles with one thought, one aim and one determination to win the war. At the same time you will see the white soldiers, the white officers, carrying their weapons on one hand and their racial prejudice in the other. Prejudice is blind to justice. If a judge on the judicial bench admits he is prejudiced in a case, he disqualifies himself. If a juror admits he is prejudiced in a case, he is disqualified; yet the soldiers cite hundreds of cases where they were prejudiced toward their comrades, "non-coms," and privates who were prejudiced toward their officers. To say that the Negro soldiers and officers received justice, equity and fair play is a little dream. And just how those brave boys subordinated their feelings and moved, fought and died under such conditions beyond our reason. Only super-human beings could have stood it.

The stories of the German bullets, shot and shell have come to us. The stories of hundreds of black boys buried beneath the soil of France have come to us; we have beheld with our own eyes the wounds that many of the returning boys will carry to their graves. We see it soon or late, all of which is an honor, and a pleasure for one to give his attention. But when we hear of the rank injustices forced upon our boys in the white army of the American army, it is enough to set our very veins on fire. It makes our heart bleed.

What our boys were forced to undergo was like swallowing a bitter pill. It has left the taste in their mouths. Surely, only the super-human could stand such treatment.

SHOWING A FELLOW UP

"Is no matter for him" is what we hear about Breckinridge Long, since Senator Selden P. Spencer gave him that knock out blow in answer to Mr. Long's letter to the Senator in regard to the League of Nations.

Breckinridge Long had so soon forgot that no one ever considered him a man of much ability. What little recognition he has received was akin to that to him by President Wilson as a reward for his robbing poor colored men of their votes in St. Louis in 1916. Stopping to the Southern statesmanship he first tried his appeal to the Negro at which he had success. But we are glad he met more than his match in challenging Senator Spencer, who with a clean-cut comprehensive answer, showed up Breckinridge Long.

"As a man thinks, so is he." What do you think of your selves? The mind is the controlling factor in human affairs; are you satisfied with your condition?

Lieut. Vaughn said: "I am not so much concerned about what the other fellow is going to do with you as I am about what you are going to do with yourselves." Amen.

Don't forget your pledge to the New Y. M. C. A. Your character is at stake.

You may quit grumbling now, as a chance will be given you to see and hear the real Harry Johnson at the Coliseum soon.

The Referendum League is at its zenith now, the blinded public has furnished the officers with enough money to pay their benchmen 10c per cent. The inducement is sufficient to cause the solicitors to manufacture a few.

"Justice is blind." Prejudice is one-eyed.

Especially do we wish to thank Rev. C. H. Parker, pastor of the Central Baptist Church, for his kind and comforting remarks and prayers for his faithful services. You all know, Anna (wife) and daughter.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of my darling baby girl, Alice Fay Harrison, of Moberly, Mo., who died Friday, 11, 1913. Fair as the sweetest of flowers, pure as the drifting snow, when she died little form that left us just a few short days ago.

Her voice filled with baby laughter, was music wherever she went. And her smile was a sunbeam's shining vision content.

We miss those little loving arms, Alice, those little words and tell, but in our hearts we were glad to know, she had all things well.

Her home in the city slanders, Gilbert, heret and in mine.

White the trees and wild winds, softly.

God keep "Alice Fay" in peace.

God keep and comfort his loved ones. May your love be ever true. For engraved on each heart that knew in her beautiful name Alice Fay.
